FOREWORD

THIS FIVE-YEAR INDEX is a new installment in Facts on File's continuous effort to deliver the news researcher from waste of time and frustration.

This is a compilation of five one-year news indexes produced for Facts on File's week-to-week news reference service and news Yearbooks. It is adapted after a master multi-year news index developed in the Facts on File editorial offices for staff use. We have found this master index, covering a span of years, to be of enormous help in quickly running to earth obscure news items that suddenly are vital to some present purpose. Because of its usefulness, we have transferred to published form this portion of our multi-year index, covering the years 1951 through 1955, so that others who need immediate access to back news may have the benefit of one of our own best time-saving devices.

Facts on File pulls together into compact, workable book form the essence of thousands of news reports published daily by the press. The vast bulk of these newspapers and periodicals supply no detailed index to their contents. Consequently, Facts on File has come into wide use, not only as a self-sufficient source of news facts, but as the means for determining the exact date on which an event was reported in the press.

With this FIVE-YEAR INDEX at hand, the researcher enjoys the added convenience of having five annual Facts on File Indexes in one. Five years of news indexing on a given name or subject comes to hand instantly as the user glances from left to right across the columns of a single page.

This FIVE-YEAR INDEX, with year-by-year column arrangement and parallel alphabetical listings, has been designed for maximum usefulness on the simplest and fastest-working plan that Facts on File's experienced indexers could devise.

THE EDITORS

How to Use the Five-Year Index

INDEXING METHODS--A reference in the Facts on File News Index supplies (I) identification of the news item, (2) the date on which it occurred, and (3) the exact page location where it has been recorded in the news text of a volume of Facts on File.

Large letters appearing in the margins of news pages serve as guides to the exact location of news items.

News is indexed in Facts on File both by subject (Accidents, Agriculture, Atomic Energy, etc.) and by the names of individuals and organizations involved. Index headings are arranged alphabetically. Reference lines under the headings appear in chronological order.

For an example of a reference from Index to news text, note on p. 2 of this Five-Year Index the first reference line in the column headed "1952" (the year 1952) under the heading ACCIDENTS:

1951 US total, cost 1-31, 44M

"1-31," or January 31, 1952, is the date of the report. "44" is the page on which details will be found in the news section of the Facts on File volume covering 1952 (Vol. XII). "M" indicates that the item appears parallel to a large letter "M" found in the margin on p. 44.

In mid-1953, the format of Facts on File's news pages was changed from a 2-column to a 3-column style. The Index reference method was altered accordingly to designate location of a news item by column, as well as by page and margin-letter guide. Example: the first reference item in the column for 1955 on p. 2 of this Five-Year Index, under the heading ACCIDENTS:

1954 US total 2-2, 48A3

"48A3" indicates that the item will be found on news page 48, opposite margin letter A, in column 3 of Facts on File's volume for 1955 (Vol. XV).

REFERENCE TO OTHER PUBLICATIONS-- The dates of events as indexed by Facts on File supply the key to research of a news item in the files of un-indexed newspapers and news periodicals. In the first example cited above, the report on accidents in the U. S. during 1951 would be found in a newspaper containing news of January 31, 1952--an afternoon newspaper of that date, or a morning newspaper of the following day.

ABBREVIATIONS--Standard abbreviations for public and private organizations and the names and titles of individuals are used in the alphabetical name and subject headings throughout the Index.

INTERNATIONAL & U. S. AGENCIES--Most references will be found under UNITED NATIONS and UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, respectively. See also alphabetical indexing under key words such as AMERICAN, NATIONAL, INTERNATIONAL, WORLD.

STARRED CORRECTIONS--Black stars appearing in some Index reference lines indicate that a correction should be noted in the Facts on File news text. The substance of each correction will be found in year-by-year listings at the end of the Five-Year Index. For easy identification, each correction line carries the page reference of the corresponding starred Index line.
